

LIZARD

Lizards are terrestrial and aquatic predatory reptiles; they include lizards, newts, salamanders, alligators, crocodiles and similar creatures.

- Nipping lizards include lizards, geckos, newts and salamanders. These small creatures are well-adapted predators, feeding mostly on tiny insects.
- Tearing lizards include iguanas and gila monsters. With their larger size, they are able to feed not only on insects, but on larger prey such as rodents and small birds.
- Munching lizards include alligators, caimans and monitor lizards. Their size and speed make them a threat to large animals.
- Chomping lizards include crocodiles. These serpentine predators can grow massive.
- Muckgulp lizards are variants that are mudflat dwellers that can burrow swiftly and pull prey into mud.
