

TORTOISE

Dwelling primarily in wetlands, rivers and lakes—as well as deserts—tortoises are reptiles and amphibians that prefer temperate to warm climates. They include tortoises, turtles, sea turtles, chelydrids and similar creatures. Some tortoises, such as snapping turtles, have particularly sharp beaks.

- Plodding tortoises include large tortoises and turtles.
- Gliding tortoises include large sea turtles.
- Snapping tortoises include gigantic snapping turtles and chelydrids.
- Spikeshell tortoises are variants with sharp spines on their shells and heinous needles lining their mouths, boosting their defensive and offensive capabilities. They are also far faster than their normal kin.
